

Virginia Trial Lawyers Association Honors Unsung Heroes - Including Andy Reinhardt

Law Letter

From Your President

Irvin V. Cantor

VTLA is blessed with members who are involved, active and committed as any bar association in the country. This column is dedicated to the countless VTLA members who selflessly give so much of their time, effort and resources in order to better our system of justice and to protect the rights of the average citizen. There are numerous individuals whose achievements could have been highlighted in this column.

Like so many of our members, the seven persons featured below are truly unsung heroes, who constantly give of themselves without any expectation of recognition or personal gain. I have tremendous admiration and respect for each of these special people.

Andrew J. Reinhardt

Kerns, Kastenbaum & Reinhardt
Richmond

Andy epitomizes the committed, dedicated VTLA member who gives and gives without expecting anything in return. For years, Andy has served on numerous committees, presented at many VTLA workers' compensation seminars, and participated in almost every annual CLE retreat. Andy has been instrumental in the continuing vitality of this year's VTLA Fiesta. Andy is such a humble, unassuming person that he would never draw attention to his accomplishments. Bob Kastenbaum, Andy's law partner, had this to say about Andy:

"Andy is an unsung hero in his personal and professional life. He has achieved a wonderful balance between being an involved father and an aggressive advocate for the rights of injured workers. Through his continued activity in VTLA, he has been a significant contributor. VTLA is fortunate to have members like him."
